Artificial Intelligence (AI) — once a distant concept, now an integral part of our daily lives, playing a crucial role in an array of applications, from natural language processing and sentiment analysis to risk evaluation and fraud detection. As AI continues to develop at a rapid pace, its implications on intellectual property rights (IPR) are coming into sharp focus. This has spurred an international conversation on how AI impacts the world of research, innovation, and knowledge dissemination.

In this regard, intellectual property rights are pivotal, protecting the rights of inventors and creators and fostering an environment conducive to innovation and progress. Globalization has magnified the relevance of IPR, with its implications permeating global trade and socioeconomic development. Yet, despite its critical role, awareness and effective implementation of IPR remains an ongoing challenge, potentially limiting the advancement of nations and industries alike.

Against this backdrop, the "International Conference on AI-Driven Advancements in Research and Publications: Intellectual Property Rights, Knowledge Management, and Beyond" seeks to delve deep into the intersection of AI, IPR, research, and publication. The conference seeks to explore the dual impact of AI on IPR — from facilitating precise and streamlined research to posing potential challenges to innovation and growth.

We invite paper contributors to probe the role of AI in advancing or impeding IPR, the pros and cons of AI in propelling innovation and development, and the potential trajectories of AI's influence on IPR. This Conference will provide an international platform for experts to exchange experiences, knowledge, views, and insights, encouraging research that marries creativity, innovation, science, and precision.

In addition to enhancing our understanding of the interplay between AI, research, and IPR, the conference aims to stimulate public discourse on these pivotal topics. It will host public lectures, workshops, and interactive sessions, inviting the general public to glean insights and actively participate in the dialogue. This includes focused sessions on the implications of emerging AI and IPR trends, inspiring youths to make informed choices and engage with innovation.

Keynote speakers and panelists from esteemed think-tanks, corporations, and academic institutions will be invited to share their perspectives on the future implications of AI and strategies to prepare society and governance structures for these developments. The conference will also feature an exhibition showcasing cutting-edge technologies and practical applications of AI and IPR. Companies, organizations, and start-ups working at the forefront of AI and IPR will offer participants a firsthand look at the technology driving our future.

Together, we will deepen our understanding of AI, research, and IPR, fostering a culture of innovation and driving forward in an increasingly digital, AI-driven world.

The conference will offer an interdisciplinary platform for academicians, intellectuals, researchers, scientists and start-ups to capture and share expertise in the following areas:

Themes and Sub-themes:
